New Orland School Nearing Completion

The new public school in district 137 Orland township is nearing completion. This new school house is one of the most practical and best built country school houses to be found in any section of rural Cook county. The building is fireproof. It is built of brick and concrete with asbestos shingle roof. A large basement is a practical feature. The heating system, coal bin, and modern kitchen are located here. The room is large enough so it can be used for social affairs and suppers.

The school room upstairs is large and well lighted with three windows facing the east. Violet ray glass is used in these windows. There are inside toilets. A good sized school library is also provided. In all the new school is a decided credit to the district, Orland township and to the men who planned it. It is built for practical service for years to come.

The Baumgartner Construction Company of Frankfort are the builders.

TINLEY PARK P. T. A. NOTES

The Tinley Park P. T. A. held their second regular meeting Friday Oct. 3, which a large number attended. Each room will in turn receive a like surprise as they were given no picnic this summer.

A report at this meeting showed 14 new members joining our ranks. "Dad's Nite" also 4 new members at our regular meeting and several guests. To these new members we extend our thanks and appreciation and hope they find our P. T. A. a pleasure.

The banner this month will be in the primary room of which Miss Morningstar is teacher.

Last but not least on Saturday October 25 there will be a 25 cent bazaar and lunch held at the school house at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Bert Fulton is chairman of this. Mrs. Bettenhausen and Mrs. Griswold served cake at the close of the meeting.

from former Residents

Long Beach, Cal.
Oct. 3, 1930

Dear Sir:—
My trip to Long Beach was a trip long to be remembered. We saw so many beautiful sceneries which would be hard to describe on paper. Everything looks so green and beautiful here, just like June in Illinois. We went through miles and miles of orange groves and saw carloads of oranges on the trees. Mr. Elmer Schoeneck, who drove through with me, is still here but will return home in a day or two.

Best wishes to all of your family.

I have not received the Tinley Times and wish you would send it to me each week.

Fraternally,
A. Ickstadt, M. D.

Mokena Camp Fire News

Papers were given out at the last meeting, for the last meeting, for the mothers to sign. So far only five have sent them back. The guardian would appreciate it very much if these were turned in soon as possible.

Tinley Park Garden Clubs Opens Fight Against Ragweed

Contribution to Autumn

Gold lace is spread on poplars,
And pink lace on the birch,
Maple leaves in applique
Are bold against a church.
Red Rosettes on sumac bush,
Locusts draped in yellow,
Orange rushing on the beech
Misty soft and mellow;
Sassafras in pendants gay
All in the woods outspread,
Are full of hope that they may grace
Fall's tressure, it is said.
Autumn's looms worked overtime
And lace is everywhere—
I'll pick a wild blue aster
To put in Autumn's hair!
—Lola Beers Mysen

The Garden Club would like to have all the folks who have rag-weed around their homes, help to destroy this weed. At the Junior Garden Club meeting Mrs. Florence Anderson showed the ragweed to the girls. One little girl remarked "Oh, We have a lot of that growing by our place."

Let's all get busy and see if we can't clean it out of Tinley Park.

The club thanks Mr. Dini and Mr. Schreiber for moving the shadow box.

Mrs. Wm. Funk has kindly offered to store this until our next flower show.

Radio manufacturers whose products comprise the million dollar exhibit at the ninth annual, Chicago Radio Show, which opens at the Coliseum October 20 and continues thru October 26, are confidently estimating that the show will bring them eleven million dollars worth of new business, wholesale.

This will approximate more than $1,000,000 an hour, for the show management has established the two-hour period, from noon to 2 p. m., Tuesday thru Saturday, as trade show hours for the transaction of business, while the public is entertained from 2 to 11 p. m. each of the seven days of the show.

Among the hundreds of new receivers on display will be many models which have never before been shown to the public.

An indication of the new buying habits of the public as observed at the New York Show is given by Arthur T. Haugh, sales manager of the Zenith Radio Corporation, and a former president of the Radio Manufacturers Association:

"The general public, is this year, for the first time, giving its attention almost exclusively to the cabinets in which receivers are housed. People have come to take for granted that any of the widely known makes of receivers will do what they have been advertised to do in the way of tone quality, distant reception, and selectivity."

The cashier and a woman customer were in the bank at the time. Two bandits held up the bank while a third bandit watched the bandits car. A shelter 40x60 feet is being put up at a cost of $10,000. It will be equipped with refreshment equipment, first-aid room, sanitary provisions and a great main room, that is equipped with huge fireplaces, for the public to mill around in, talk, warm and rest.

The Meaning of Navy Day

BATTLE BETWEEN U.S.S. CONSTITUTION AND H.M.S. GUERRIERE (Painting by Gordon Grant)

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

OCTOBER 27 of each year is widely celebrated in this country as Navy day. On that date the navy holds open house and invites the public to visit its ships and stations. Navy day was first celebrated in 1922 under the sponsorship of the Navy League of the United States. Since that time other patriotic organizations have joined in the celebrations, and with the co-operation of the United States Navy department, the part that the sea service has played in our history and its present peace-time work are recalled each year.

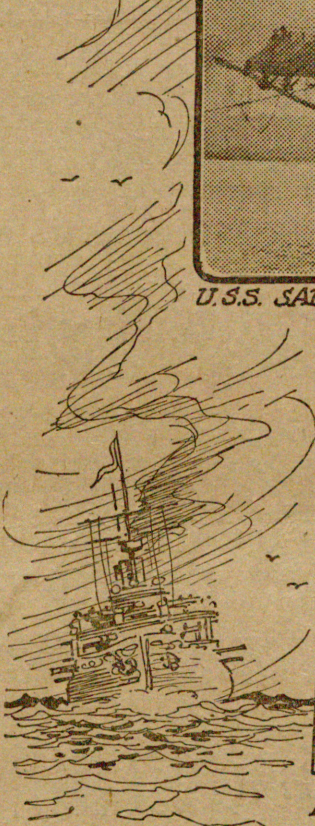

There is a dual reason for celebrating Navy day on October 27. It is the anniversary of an important event in the early history of the navy and it is the birthday of a man, much of whose life was devoted to advancing a sound naval policy for the United States—Theodore Roosevelt. The part which Roosevelt played in building up our sea power is but little known to many Americans, compared to other more spectacular parts of his career. But it was his work as assistant secretary of the navy under President McKinley which so raised the efficiency of our navy as to enable it to win astounding victories in the Spanish-American war, and to raise the United States to a position among the great powers of the world almost overnight. His contribution to building up our naval strength, begun then, continued during the time he was President, and to the day of his death he was an earnest and influential advocate of maintaining a navy commensurate with our needs.

The significance of October 27 in our naval history is this: On October 13, 1775, the Continental congress, meeting in Philadelphia, appointed a marine committee, and on October 27 this committee reported a resolution outlining a program of ships to be purchased and converted into men-of-war. On October 29 congress authorized the purchase of two ships and in the course of the next ten days appropriated for a number of additional ships. So any one of those three dates may be considered the "birthday" of the United States navy, but by common consent October 27 has been selected for that honor, since it marked the first definite official step towards the establishment of a sea force.

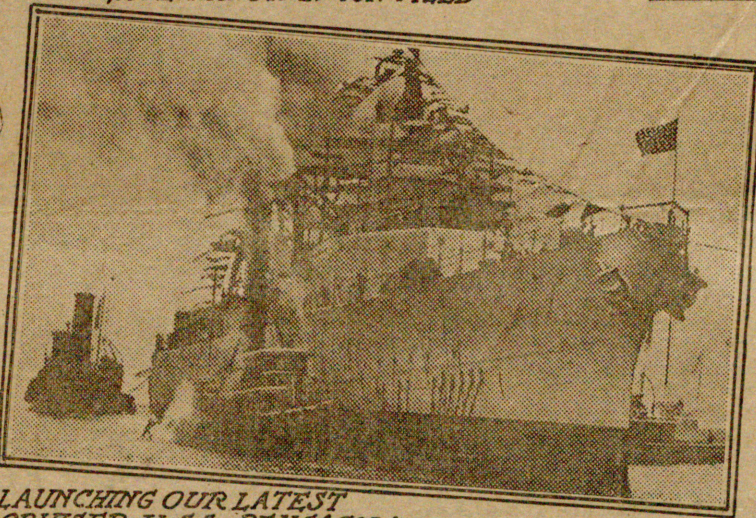

From this modest beginning the United States navy in 155 years has grown to be one of the great institutions of the United States, with a total strength of more than 14,000 officers and more than 133,000 enlisted men, and the leading naval power of the world in number of ships and tonnage, although that leadership will be shared with Great Britain, once the "mistress of the seas," under the terms of the naval treaty, made in London in January of this year.

The history of our navy in all of our wars, from the Revolution down to the World war, has been one of almost unvarying victory and success. Outstanding in that history are these ten records:

1. The United States navy has had only four fleet actions and in each one has captured or destroyed every enemy ship.
2. No United States naval ship has ever been in the hands of mutineers, while in other navies whole squadrons and fleets have been in the hands of mutineers.
3. The United States navy is the only navy in the world that owns a royal standard by capture, taken at York, Canada, by Commodore Chauncey.
4. The United States navy holds the record for the capture of seventeen British ensigns in one day, at the battle of Lake Champlain. This beats the capture of sixteen by the French at the battle of La Hogue.
5. In the War of 1812-15, the United States navy captured or destroyed every ship put in the Great Lakes by Great Britain.
6. There has never been a mutiny of any sort in the marine corps, hence its motto, "Semper Fidelis."
7. The Constitution took during the War of 1812 1,100 prisoners. The United States navy did not lose during the entire war 1,100 officers, sailors and marine prisoners.
8. The United States navy possesses in the frigate Constitution the greatest man-of-war that ever sailed the sea. She did five unprecedented things:
 - a. She knocked down the stone forts of Tripoli.
 - b. She escaped from Admiral Broke's squadron of seven ships after a four days' chase without losing a gun, a boat or an anchor.

U.S.S. SARATOGA, A FLOATING AVIATION FIELD

LAUNCHING OUR LATEST CRUISER U.S.S. PENSACOLA

c. She defeated the Guerriere, a crack British frigate, in seventeen minutes after firing the first broadside, wrecking the Guerriere, which lost 179 men.

d. She shot every spar out of the frigate Java in a running fight without taking in her rials; that is to say, she licked her enemy without taking off her coat.

e. She captured the Cyane and Levant at the same time without being raked once, while every broadside she fired was a raking broadside. In addition, she ran the blockade of British ships seven times. She never lost her commanding officer, she never went aground and the largest number of men she ever lost in a fight was eight. She was in commission more than eighty years.

9. The chest measurement of recruits in the United States navy is the largest of any navy in the world.

10. The mortality tables show that the United States navy sailor is the healthiest man of any navy in the world and the hardest man to kill of any navy in the world.

The first purpose of the navy is, of course, in time of war to safeguard our country from aggression by sea, to protect our commerce, and of course, to defeat the enemy and bring about a successful cessation of the war. The task assigned to the navy is a great one. In addition to our own tremendous coast line, studded with large cities and important harbors, there are our outlying territories and possessions, from the Virgin Islands, a thousand miles to the southeast of continental United States, to the Philippines, lying seven thousand miles across the Pacific, including Alaska, Hawaii and Samoa and, perhaps, most important of all, the Canal Zone in Panama, to all of which we have extended the protection of the American flag.

The mere task of protecting the merchant shipping necessary to the United States is a colossal one. The trade lanes of merchant ships bringing goods to America and taking American products abroad form a network that covers the whole globe. And in times of peace, as in time of war, the navy protects this great commerce.

The navy has been called "our first line of defense" because it operates under the sea, on the surface and in the air over the water. But a line of defense which takes precedence even over the navy is diplomacy, since negotiations conducted over the diplomatic table often are of the greatest importance to the nation and can affect the progress and prosperity of a people as much as can a war. In carrying on diplomatic negotiations it is of the utmost importance that our views on international questions be heard and considered and treated with respect. The existence of an adequate navy unquestionably strengthens the hands of our diplomats.

In addition to the great peacetime activities of the navy in supporting our diplomacy and insuring fair treatment to our foreign trade, there are innumerable activities which return to the American people the money that is annually expended on the navy.

Our navy yards are great industrial plants and in each a testing laboratory is necessary for investigations and research on the multitudinous materials entering into the construction of the naval establishment and the fleet. Under such materials of engineering may be mentioned cement, stone, brick, tile, ferrous and non-ferrous metals, bituminous materials, paints and oils, rubber, mechanical and electrical specialties, etc.

In the purchase of large quantities of materials and supplies, it is of vital importance from the standpoint of service and economy to obtain the best possible, and the navy has been a prime mover in the preparation and promulgation of standard specifications for such requirements.

There exist hundreds of such specifications covering multitudinous articles. This standardization has been of inestimable value to private industries as the navy's standard requirements, which are known to be high, are being used by many such enterprises.

The hydrographic office of the navy makes many valuable contributions to charting the seas in many quarters of the world. It aids the coast guard service in reporting icebergs and destroying derelicts and other menaces to navigation. The clocks of the country are set by the naval observatory time.

The navy has been foremost in scientific exploration, beginning with the early voyages of Wilkes in the Pacific, reaching a high point in the discovery of the North pole by Robert E. Peary, a naval officer, and culminating in the exploits of Admiral Richard E. Byrd in both the Arctic and Antarctic regions. And in addition to the valuable scientific data secured as the result of his explorations, this naval officer has the distinction of being the first man to fly over both the North and South poles.

The navy is among the foremost in aviation. It is progressive in the development of both airplane and lighter-than-air craft. For four years a navy plane and a navy pilot held the world's airplane speed record, 263 miles an hour, made by Lieut. A. J. Williams. On May 8, 1929, Lieut. Apollo Soucek of the navy made a world's record for altitude flight in any class of airplanes when he rose to a height of 39,140 feet. The previous high mark had been held by an army aviator also—Lieut. C. C. Champion with a mark of 38,418 feet made in July, 1927. On July 4, 1929, Lieutenant Soucek broke the altitude record for seaplanes by ascending to 38,500 feet, thus breaking the record of 37,995 feet made by Lieutenant Champion on July 4, 1927. The navy holds numerous world's records for lifting and endurance of seaplanes; it has developed and perfected the airplane catapult; and in many other ways has helped the United States maintain supremacy in the air as well as on the water.

Doctor's 3 RULES Big Help to Bowels

What a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork, every day! It's easy, if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor:

1. Drink a big tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day.
2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself.
3. Try for a bowel movement at exactly the same hour every day.

Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning-out, and it won't leave your insides weak and watery. This family doctor's prescription is just fresh, laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other helpful ingredients that couldn't hurt a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels! How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

Clean up that coated tongue, sweeten that bad breath, and get rid of those bilious headaches. A little Syrup Pepsin will soon free the bowels from all that waste matter that makes the whole system sluggish. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better.

You'll like the way Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin tastes. The way it works will delight you. Big bottles—all drugstores.

"Couldn't Feel Any Better"

"I was nervous and rundown and weighed less than a hundred pounds. I felt tired and weak and often had to lie down. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I saw it advertised. Now I eat well, sleep well and have good color. In fact, I couldn't feel any better and I weigh one hundred fifty-five pounds. Beggars Can Choose

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceland, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. They lunch together and recall their school days. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. The love-making progresses rapidly. They make a runaway marriage. Briceland is furious, but helpless, as Ernestine is of age. Loring Hamilton, lawyer, wins Lillian's consent to be his wife.

CHAPTER III

Strange Country

It seemed a natural thing to Ernestine, however it seemed to the others, to wake on her marriage morning, in the little back bedroom of the tiny house where the Todds had lived all their married life. She was instantly wide awake and oriented. Perhaps it was the close tangle of Will's arms about her that made everything normal. Perhaps the delicious consciousness of new happiness had never entirely been lost in sleep. It did not matter at all about the family now.

Thinking of everything, Ernestine felt in her heart something new about Will. Added to her romantic love for him was something really more wonderful: a sound thing—respect. He had behaved admirably.

She was filled with a transport of tenderness, a strong conviction of having done well. Now, at last, life had begun for her. The chrysalis of girlhood was broken, and she was emerged into womanhood. She had become real. Always now, Will would be here beside her at the beginning of every day. Gravely she considered this, and sent up a wordless prayer that she might be a good wife.

Some one was moving about in the kitchen, and she heard the rattle of coals in the kitchen grate. How close and small the house was. Each sound came through the thin walls distinctly. Ernestine realized that she would have to close the window, and she essayed to rise. But at the first movement Will's arms tightened about her, though he did not wake. Ernestine extricated herself and got up with a swift, strong movement.

"You have to work today, Will," she said in such a wifely tone that he laughed and looked up at her adoringly.

"I suppose now I've got somebody even worse than my mother about making me get up," he said, and then added, "Hey, wait, I'll get you some warm water," for Ernestine was washing her face in the basin that stood on a small washstand near the door.

But the water out of the pitcher, which had stood all night with the cold wind blowing through the open window upon it, was cold and invigorating.

Will shaved in the kitchen, and Ernestine could hear his voice, in an affectionate murmur, talking to some one. Before the small wavy mirror, she applied her make-up, looking at herself sharply. She arranged her sleek soft hair, proud of its thickness and texture. What was there in her face? Was she different this morning? She must not be different. She powdered again, and rubbed some of the scarlet off her lips, which were as red as cherries under the lip salve.

She made the bed neatly and set the room in order, packed up her belongings. The smell of coffee and the sound of the percolator made her feel faint. She had eaten nothing the evening before.

In the kitchen, Will's face turned on her, as bright as a triangular mirror with the sun on it. His mother was sitting by the kitchen table, with a warm shawl over her heavy dress. She could be up at times, and this morning she had made the effort. Ernestine went to Will's mother, and kissed her.

"I hope you didn't get up on our account, mother," she said gently, "but I'm glad you are better."

The woman looked up at Ernestine, her faded eyes, under the drooping brows, regarding this strange bird that had slipped so easily into her nest. How old she looked, thought Ernestine. She was a generation beyond mamma, for she was old with a gentle humility and meekness that Ernestine had never met before. There was not in her even the stubbornness that sometimes the meek can use so effectively.

Will's father Ernestine could understand. A carpenter, with a gift for woodcutting, he was a skilled and able workman and had a great pride in his trade. He was a tall, thin, stooped man, with a clean-shaven, heavily furrowed face and brightly saturnine, black eyes, which regarded Ernestine with a kind of grim humor. He made her realize without saying so, that he disapproved of their marriage as much as her people did, but that he was not the man to cry over spilled milk. They could count on his kindness.

At breakfast in the bright kitchen, Ernestine and Will made plans.

"You are welcome to stay here as long as you like," said Peter Todd, but the two shook their heads. They had already decided to be independent at once.

"We might just as well go today, and find a place to board until we can get an apartment," said Ernestine, looking very young and earnest. "I'll get my trunk from mamma's, as soon as we have found a residence. It's awfully good of you to want us here, but the house is small, and mother is really not well enough to have us."

Mrs. Todd said nothing, and Ernestine felt that she had never seen so dispirited a creature.

"If we get near town, mom," Will said, "we can save money on carfare. I know a place on Erie street one of the fellows told me about, where you can get a room and two meals, at a reasonable price, and it's in walking distance of the office. Anyhow, I think we ought to live alone."

"That's right," said Will's father. "It's the only way for young married people. If you need any money when you go to fixing up a flat I can lend you a little. I always have a few hundred dollars tucked away for emergencies," he explained to Ernestine. "I can let Will borrow, without interest, if he needs it. I own a house on Troy street that you could have if it wasn't leased. But the location is not good for you."

"We'll manage," said Will confidently, and Ernestine admired him.

They exchanged bright looks, and Mr. Todd said heartily:

"Well, come and visit us sometimes, anyhow."

It was soon time for them to go. Ernestine, in her squirrel coat and scarlet hat, had her new relatives good-by. She felt that there were tears in the air, realized a little that these people were losing Will more definitely than she would ever be lost to her family. He was their only son, but they said good-by to him with quiet dignity. Ernestine admired their restraint, and was grateful for their good taste. They offered neither advice nor counsel, but allowed the young ones to go forth about their own affairs. The house on Erie street brought to Ernestine her first shock of reality. It was an ancient, smoke-blackened dwelling place, not far from the lake. Across the street from the house a five-story machine shop reverberated with activity. A secret-looking brown-stone house, with drawn blinds, stood on the corner. Ernestine felt that the apartment they spoke of so glibly was not so near. A sense of the irrevocable nature of the step she had taken swept over her. She was now Will's, and, as he had said to her father, his roof was her roof. His home was hers, and this was it. She had definitely abandoned her old way of life and set her feet in a strange country. The future was as remote from the past as though she were following him to a great distance.

Hand in hand they ran up the stone stairs and met a small plump woman, called Mrs. Bennett, with whom Will discussed rooms and prices, while Ernestine stood to one side, burning conscious of the gold band on her third finger.

Ernestine was too good a sport to bemoan their conspicuous lack of money. Fresh from the rigors of a fine school, it was not hard for her to accustom herself to simplicity. Will discovered that she had a most practical nature. The forces which

"Crackers" First Baked by Massachusetts Man

As far as any authentic record shows, the first cracker bakery in the United States was that of Theodore Pearson at Newburyport, Mass. He began business in 1702 and his specialty was a large cracker which was known both as a "pilot" and as ship's bread. Joshua Brent was Pearson's first great business rival. He erected an oven for cracker baking at Milton, Mass., in 1801. He was succeeded by many other cracker manufacturers. The crackers were first made by hand. During the years between 1840 and 1865 the mechanical process employed in making crackers underwent a remarkable development. Prior to 1840 the use of machinery in the cracker-making process was practically unknown. Even then the dough was still worked up and put into the oven one had driven her into marriage had not all been romantic. In adjusting herself to living on Will's pay, she was able to exercise some of her native ingenuity and shrewdness, and in that capacity she found a certain pleasure. It was fun to put herself on a basis of having no money to spend and then discovering how much she had grown accustomed to spending in the months since she had left school. Her trunk was full of pretty clothes. It was an element she did not at first appreciate.

CHAPTER IV

A Party at Pastano's

Mr. Poole was having a party for Ernestine and Will, and, according to prearrangement, Ernestine slipped downstairs ahead of time to show herself to Mrs. Bennett. She could not help but be proud of the evening dress mamma had given her for Christmas, and which she had not worn before. The yellow chiffon lay about her slender limbs delicately, subtly. She appreciated the illusive cobwebby hose that had come with the dress and the gold cloth slippers. The string of small real pearls which had come to her from her Grandmother Langley's estate, the pearl ring which daddy had given her to match her necklace, were the last touches of a perfect toilet. Will had appreciated her, this evening, his fine eyes glowing with admiration.

"You are lovely," he protested, as though she had denied it, and she swung herself about in the narrow room and gave him a languishing, mocking look. But she went down the carpeted stairs in a glow, her squirrel coat over her arm.

Mrs. Bennett got up with an admiring exclamation when Ernestine closed the door behind her. The latter advanced to the center of the room and pirouetted on her toes. A little, round, weary body, with tired eyes beneath a fringe of gray hair, Mrs. Bennett had long outworn personal egotism and was generous with praise and sympathy.

"Youth is the time to live, darling," she said to Ernestine. "My life is an old story, but you are young and glowing, and things are happening to you. It is better for you to have your hard times now, and grow old rich and strong, than to have the hardships in old age, as I have had them. But tell me, aren't you excited to be having a birthday party given in your honor by a great cartoonist?"

Ernestine laughed. "He only wants to be nice to Will. He thinks it will please Will, and of course it does."

Mrs. Bennett maintained a discreet silence, and Ernestine turned to the mirror over a chest of drawers and looked at her reflection, running her hands over her sleek soft hair. She was a little thinner than she had been when she was married, and her eyes were big and dark in the delicate whiteness of her face. She was lovely with a breath-taking quality, her face shining with an inner spiritual excitement. It seemed to her as she stared that she looked too happy, too thrilled for every-day use. She must learn to dissemble.

"Sometimes, darling," Mrs. Bennett chided Ernestine gently, "I think you fail to realize what an effect you have on the people here—on the men. You are so different from the other girls these boys know. You bloom. You wear the face of love. It's hard on them. I want you to be very wise with Mr. Poole. It would be an easy thing for you to disrupt his friendship with Will. Will admires him, and his patronage means so much, just now."

"Will won't be jealous of any attention I pay to Mr. Poole, or that he pays to me," Ernestine said indifferently, "if that's what you mean. It won't hurt Mr. Poole to admire me. He's a nice old man, and he loves to admire women, and men, too, as far as that goes. It's part of his big heart, Will says. Anyhow, Will wouldn't be jealous of me—now." Her small face was so shining that Mrs. Bennett threw her advising instinct away with a gesture and came and kissed her young friend.

"Have a lovely time, darling. Pastano's has the distinction of being the very toughest place in all Chicago. It is beautiful, and not so dangerous as Mr. Pastano likes people to think. He is really very careful about the police. And then, too, you will be with Mr. Poole, who is a close friend of Ruby."

Centenarians

Although approximately 5,000 persons in the United States claim to have reached the age of one hundred years, most of them either are mistaken or have deliberately falsified in their eagerness to gain public notice, says T. Swann Harding, an authority on science, in the North American Review. "It is significant," he points out, "that such advanced ages occur among peasant classes usually, where records are unavailable."

Mr. Harding shows that although a few cases of persons who have passed the century mark have been authenticated, many more such claims, particularly ages as one hundred and twenty years and upward, have been disproved by marriage, military and other records. Only .06 per cent of Americans, he shows, reach eighty years of age.

The Mud of Midlothian

At the special request of U. C. there will be no raise in subscription price during this series.

WHO'S WHO.

Clare Moore first entered the limelight when he blotted out a man who called him Clara. A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned as the old duffer was ready to pass out anyway. Since then to delude avengers Mr. Moore disguises himself as a small boy in short pants and romps about the Midlothian ballfield whenever he gets the chance.

Among other vicious habits he swallows grape seeds, chews bubble gum and says "Darn it" when a tire blows. His chief hobby is collecting cigar bands which he pastes over the answers in the back of his son's arithmetic. When he tires of this pastime he sets down and thinks up fish stories to tell when he returns from his next fishing trip.

On being asked what his life philosophy might be, Mr. Moore said: "The Midlothian Dairy which stands for everything that is wholesome and for the perpetuation of American standards which the bolsheviks are attempting to undermine as in Europe where, I understand, there's a lot of dissension now, which isn't such an awful thing if you remember it makes life interesting, something you can't say about it if you live 10,000 miles out in the sticks in the winter, not that Midlothian is like that but you sometimes feel some of your customers live away out when you discover all the roads are six feet under snow but the milk must go through just like the mail, though I can't see how in the world the mail pilots keep —" As Mr.

Moore gasped for breath the interviewer slipped away

The dearth of local poetry in the Mud is due, not to any lack of poetic inspiration or unfamiliarity with the Muse, but to the utter hopelessness of finding a rhyme for Midlothian.

The rumor that Frank Schmieg's blue angora ran away last week in a state of nervous terror after being snapped at by one of Frank's canaries that had just taken a drink of McIntosh water is untrue.

A petition should be circulated asking the village board to regulate the hours during which the Lions may practice their roar.

It is both annoying and disconcerting to find, on investigating a bizarre, midnight noise, not the expected cow or catfish, but your next door neighbor practicing in his own quaint way the roar of the king of beasts.

Particularly if he is wearing a loose set of uppers.

A group visit to the Lincoln Park zoo would be just the thing for the new Lions. In half an hour or so they could get the roar down pat.

Those in fear of being mistaken for some singular creature from the wilds and added to the park collection could have phonograph records made and practice in a sound proof room.

If tailwister Walter Erickson wants practice Uncle Casey can introduce him to a car he can wind up any morning after six o'clock.

It is the prayer of Ben Schroeder that the Lions won't go so far as to grow manes. According to him one like Editor Andrews is enough for any organization.

Now that Tom Adams' appearance in the annual minstrel show has been announced we understand the line — giggles, gables and gags — in last week's ad. The giggles, no doubt, are some more of the McNeess line.

We are assured, however, on excellent authority that Mr. Adams absolutely will not be allowed to make a sales talk during the performance.

Among the signs of hard times may be numbered the fact that a lot of people have begun to call nickels, fivers.

Lions Royally Entertained; Add Members

Last week each member of the Boosters Club received a notice from the Lions International that he was now a member of the Midlothian Lions Club. Hence the bright new buttons with the letter "L" bedecking the proud bosoms of our local business men.

Four new members came into the club at the regular business meeting Monday night at the Legion hall, bringing the membership up to 39, all of whom are business men.

President John Smith of the Cook County Council of Lions Clubs, Lion Peter Heintz of Blue Island and an other representative from Woodlawn were visitors at the meeting. Mr. Heintz stressed the value of the Code of Ethics of the organization and, in particular, pointed the necessity of keeping politics entirely out of the club. As examples of the good the Lions are accomplishing, Lion Smith cited that the mode of procedure recently adopted for handling criminal court juries was suggested by the Council and that they are now working to have convicted criminals kept in jail pending appeals.

As a feature of the next meeting of the club four members will discuss the business of four others; the names were drawn from a hat. Roy G. Andrews will "expose" George Baerlin; Frank Sippy will tell of the varieties of "cabbage" used by William Sedgwick in his "Midlothian Specials"; J. Stegebauer will try to determine the quantity of slate in Nagel's coal and Walter Erickson will pan barbers in general and Ben Schroeder in particular.

The entertainment committee served a delicious luncheon of sandwiches, cake, coffee and "trimmings", plus good smokes.

"Mrs. Messenger" Spends Day With County Health Nurse at Schools

Five days a week, ten months a year a Ford leaves Midlothian to travel the school circuit of Bremen Township. From September to June its driver is the guardian of two thousand children's health. Every school child has met her; every mother has heard of her; very few know her work.

Eight years ago Miss Eleanor Gallagher began her work as County Nurse in Bremen Township. Day in and day out since, she has kept steadily at it—routine work has not bored her, conditions have not discouraged her, toil has not tired her. A dynamo she was; a dynamo she still is.

Each September sees her annual checkup. Teachers and pupils are met; changes are noted; new problems are studied. The preliminary survey is made, a schedule is laid out for the new year.

A new health chart is placed in every school room. On it the names of the children are written to be followed after a physical examination by a series of stars, red for defects and blue for perfection. There are ten points for which stars are shown: vaccination, diphtheria immunization, teeth, ears, skin, nose and throat, eyes, health project poster, personal hygiene, nutrition. A glance at the chart shows the physical condition of each child throughout the year.

The routine work of the year begins with a physical examination of each of the two thousand school children in Bremen. It continues with trips to the dentist and doctor. For Miss Gallagher not only points out defects and the necessary improvements but sees that medical service is made available to the child at the county's expense. It ends with the final checkup and instructions for the summer vacation.

Routine work is what it is called but judge for yourself on the basis of this sample day if it is the dull, boring routine that we dread.

It is Monday morning; the Ford is traveling from school to school. The Harding in Posen is the first stop. There are two dental patients here with molars that must come out. A moment and the patients trip out of the school, hop into the car and settle themselves as for a circus trip. On to St. Stanislaus where a defective vision case is picked up. Back to Midlothian and Len Small and two more dental cases. There is a throat patient at St. Christopher's but the Ford is bulging now. Another trip will be made later.

Down Crawford to 159th. A dental extraction is not half bad when you travel like this. Miss Gallagher is not a dull chauffeur. She keeps you laughing every minute of the way. The autumn air on a Monday morning is made to carry laughter. Even a dentist chair can't be such an awful thing.

Over 159th. You can look down on Midlothian now. Rolling green fields and then not so far off the village. The Len Small children crane their necks and point out the houses. The others contentedly imitate it as scenery.

The institution now, the dentist, the doctor, the oculist, Miss Gallagher is busy sorting out her charges. Glasses wouldn't do a decayed molar any good, and her charges know it. Everybody is lined up finally, teeth are out and glasses fitted in no time at all. Very soon everyone is back in school again.

Another similar trip is made and that part of the day's business is done.

Next on the program is physical examination at St. Stanislaus' in Posen. Twenty five subjects pass under Miss Gallagher's eagle scrutiny.

William Flaws Resigns as President of Firemen

William Flaws, president of the firemen's club has resigned, as he expects to leave for Canada. A new president will be elected Thursday.

At fire drill Friday evening the volunteers tested out the fire plugs in the Robinson subdivision. The plug at 159th and Lawndale was found to give very poor pressure, but good pressure was obtained through the booster pump when a connection was made at the pump house.

The new luggage basket for raincoats and boots has been installed on the truck.

BREMEN CHIEFS CLUB BUSY

The new Police Chiefs and Constables association of Bremen township is busy making plans for a big dance at Saenger hall, Tinley Park, to be held November 15, according to the officers.

Wolf of Gubbio, Patrick Lydon; Folk of Gubbio, Pupils of the Sixth grade. All did their part well and delighted their audience.

On Wednesday Eugene Andrews delighted the geography class by telling his classmates of the interesting trip he had during the summer. He made use of the map to locate the places he had visited.

The following pupils have had perfect spelling lessons during the past month: Elizabeth Weinert, Anna Urban, Edward Stoy, Earl Swillum, Ada May Kososki, Ada Golden, Mildred Flowers, Anna Mary Dillon, Virginia Wagner.

Mrs. Fred Baker entertained her 500 club of Midlothian ladies yesterday.

A defect on any point means a red instead of a blue star and ten points less on the child's health average. There are a great many red stars for teeth today; Miss Gallagher says it is the same way throughout the township this year.

But a red star is as much an incentive as a blue for when improvement is shown it is replaced by the other. There is no child who does not want a solid line of blue stars so if the parents are as enthusiastic as the children, defects will be remedied very quickly. At the end of the year comes the reward when the one with most points from each school is sent as Health Delegate to the Palos Festival.

Miss Gallagher watches very closely for diphtheria immunization. Four years ago four children died in Posen of diphtheria. Instrumental in having 300 Posen children immunized because of those deaths, she does not want a single fatal repetition.

The ten points investigated Miss Gallagher gives the child a card noting the defective points. This is brought home to the parents who decide whether the necessary work is to be done by the family physician or at Oak Forest.

As the examination continues Miss Gallagher chats. She tells us that the only school in Bremen furnishing hot lunches at noon is in Robbins. The only schools with auditoriums are Robbins, St. Stanislaus and Forest Ridge at Oak Forest. There has been no small pox in this district in years. Yes, sometimes her work is discouraging but always she sees results near and the blue spell vanishes.

She says her busiest season is almost here; in the late fall there is always a flood of the fall contagious diseases, scarlet fever, diphtheria, chicken pox, and the others that used to be thought an essential part of childhood.

To confine them to as small a number as possible is Miss Gallagher's task. No contact however slight, between the sickroom and the schoolroom is her aim. She works toward this in cooperation with Otto Ziebell, township health supervisor. His is the legal aspect of the campaign, to quarantine and placard the home of a sufferer. Her's is the medical and educational aspect, to see that the patient is getting proper care, to instruct other members of the family in preventatives and to warn them against leaving open an avenue by which the disease may be spread.

And still we haven't reached the end. Miss Gallagher is also in charge of tuberculosis cases in Bremen township. Indigent cases, those in want either because of sickness or unemployment, who need county help are cared for by her. Last, unless she has added another job in the last few days, she conducts a monthly welfare meeting for the mothers which lasts two hours, in Robbins and another in Midlothian.

The schools covered by Miss Gallagher are: in Midlothian, Len Small and St. Christopher's; in Oak Forest, Arbor Park and Forest Ridge; in Posen, Harding, Bremen and St. Stanislaus; in Tinley Park 142 and the Lutheran school; in Robbins, Lincoln Memorial; in the country schools, 141 and 144.

Working on similar lines in the rest of the county are other "Miss Gallaghers" under the supervision of Miss Harriett Fulmer who is in charge of the Rural Nursing Service. And, now you know something about the Ford and its driver.

Attorney Whitehead Arrested by Debring After Auto Crash

John Whitehead of Harvey, attorney for Homewood, was arrested by Constable Charles Debring at 12:45 Sunday morning at 160th and Dixie highway following an auto crash at the intersection.

According to Debring, Whitehead, driving a Packard sedan at a high speed on the wrong side of the road, swerved into a truck, turning it over, smashing his own car and going into the ditch.

The truck was driven by L. M. Wright of Oak Park, a garage owner. With him was Dr. Charles E. Cibcock, dentist, of 13842 S. Highland ave., Blue Island. The driver was thrown through the windshield and the doctor through the door and the truck falling on him. With a broken pelvic bone and a possible fractured vertebrae, his condition is serious. Dr. Louis Cibcock of Brookfield, following in his car, picked up his brother.

Attorney Whitehead was taken to Harvey, where it took the constable until 3:30 a. m. to get him placed under legal arrest. He was released on $1000 bond Sunday. Trial was set before Justice Heintz at the Village Hall in Posen at 2 p. m. Friday.

BUSINESS NOTES

Mr. A. E. Smith is opening a fruit and vegetable market Saturday in the Schlesinger Bldg., Waverly at 147th. He has been engaged in hauling and selling produce both wholesale and retail, about 3 weeks in this vicinity. He just bought a new truck from Clarke-Hulett.

Mrs. Ted Czeslawski spent the day with her sister, Mrs. Elmer Zapel in Beverly Hills last week.

School Board of 143 Cuts Tax Levy in Half

To conform to the new real estate valuations, the school board of district 143 was obliged to cut its tax levy from 4 per cent to 2 per cent (in round numbers) at their regular meeting Friday night at the Len Small school, reduces the levy from $125,000 to $76,000 and will probably seriously embarrass the board.

Louis L. Samson, contractor, was paid $32,500 for work done up to October 1.

A bond issue to take up unpaid teachers warrants was discussed, but no action taken.

The secretary of the board will post notices in the Midlothian post-office of all future regular and special meetings, so that the public may be informed as to the time and place of meetings.

The resolution presented by Midlothian Post at the State Convention held in Aurora the early part of September and rejected by the resolution committee was passed by the 4th district unanimously Sept. 25th at their regular meeting held in Lemont. This resolution caused considerable discussion.

All members of Post 691 have been invited by the St. Luke's church to attend their Armistice Day program, Nov. 9th at 8 p. m. It is urged that as many members as possible attend this function.

Twelve members of the Legion have been lined up for a bowling league; 20 are expected. The Legionnaires are looking forward to some interesting evenings at the Harvey alleys this winter. It is hoped that the Lions will join with them, as is done in Tinley Park.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Messenger:

An article published in last week's issue of your paper contained a paragraph as follows: "Among those largely responsible for the high Midlothian average, was Village President Richard White who personally brought twenty-five votes to the clerks."

I am at a loss to know where this information was secured (or is it a paid ad)? I was a judge at the registration remaining at the place of registration the entire day and Richard White did not make any appearance all day, to the best of my knowledge. Furthermore, I do not know of a single voter brought to the polls by him. Besides that, he does not live or vote in the 3rd precinct which registered at Donato's Barber shop in Midlothian. The credit should be given for the large registration to Mr. Fred Robinson, Republican committeeman and Mr. Larry Sullivan, Democratic committeeman of the 3rd precinct who canvassed every home in his precinct and notified all voters of the registration.

Will you kindly withdraw your above statement and publish this for true news.

Respectfully,
George Blessing.

Editor's Note—We do not withdraw the statement, in fact we verified it from Election Judge Robinson. Evidently our correspondent does not consider the fact that Midlothian is divided into two precincts and that voters in precinct 4 did not register in precinct 3.

We are truly sorry that we were not given any information regarding the efforts of the above mentioned persons and are glad to give them due credit.

Roy G. Andrews.

Brother of Wm. Nagel Killed

Emil Nagel of Lewis St., Blue Island was killed at the Illinois Brick Company plant east of the R. I. main line Wednesday. His clothing is said to have caught in the machinery and he was dragged to his death. He worked there for 18 years; the inquest was held at Krugers Thursday.

He was a brother of William Nagel of Midlothian and of Lewis Nagel of Blue Island.

Many Voters Fail to Register; Village High

From incomplete returns it appears that many Bremen township voters failed to register. Precincts 3 and 4 made a good showing, but Tinley Park in particular, appears short.

The following figures were turned in:

Precinct	Total Reg.
1 Posen	375
2 Robbins	607
3 Mid. (Donato)	666
4 Mid. (Realis)	771
5 Tinley Park	555
6 Markham

Hard work by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robinson and Larry Sullivan helped bring in 242 voters in precinct 3 on Tuesday. Committeemen Debring and DeRudder worked just as hard in 4 and 384 registered at the last day.

Harry Nicholson Elected President of Conservatives

Harry Nicholson was elected president of the Conservative Party at a well attended meeting at Kreis Bros. hall Friday evening. Frank Penn was elected vice-president; Mrs. Fred Robinson was chosen as secretary and Frank Callham made treasurer.

County Police Have Busy Month; Cars Recovered

County police, stationed at Homewood, made 58 arrests the past month, Deputy Fleming leading with 11, Orgel second with 6.

Cars recovered numbered 27, valued at $9,550; 20 were returned to their owners, valued at $8,100. There were 20 auto accidents reported in this district, with 5 killed and 37 injured. Accidents from other causes numbered 5, with 3 killed and 1 injured; there was one suicide.

Deputy George Nuessel received a fractured left knee and bruises at 1:30 a. m. Sunday when making a left turn at Cicero and 183rd. His "jiffy stand" hit the pavement causing the wheel to spin and throw the rider.

Treat In Store For

Kiddies Saturday

A popcorn matinee is the latest of the various forms of amusement that the Lyric Theatre of Blue Island is offering the Kiddie Club recently organized. Manager Guth explains that the Kiddie Club offers some new stunt, contest or treat to its members each Saturday matinee. This week its going to be free popcorn next week it will be some other treat. The Kiddie Club was organized by the management for the purpose of obtaining a kiddie patronage so that it would be possible to book pictures that would be especially suitable for children. This Saturday will be William Haines in "Way Out West" with an added attraction of the first episode of Rin Tin Tin's latest serial "The Lone Defender."

Two of Broadway's favorite legitimate stage "funsters" appear in "Queen High" at the Lyric on Sunday. They are Charlie Ruggles and Frank Morgan. As partners in a garter enterprise they have differences and to settle them each draws a poker hand to determine who will become butler to the other. There are many laughs in the ensuing situations.

"Dough Boys", comedy of military life with Buster Keaton playing a millionaire's son who enlists in the army, is the attraction which will open Thursday at the theatre. Keaton appears in the roles of singer, Apache dancer, and ukulele player as well as a raw recruit who becomes initiated in the trials and tribulations of life as a soldier. Keaton served in the trenches as a doughboy throughout the World war.

SAFETY HINTS

By Chief Terry

When turning corners, do not "cut", but stay on your own side of the road. In case a car from the other direction pulls up to the intersection before stopping, a crash may result—and you will be liable for the damage.

Cutting corners is forbidden by section 41 of the vehicle law and offenders are subject to a $25 fine.

In wet weather every precaution must be observed to keep the car under control. Last week a car at 147th and Abbottsford rd. knocked a man down, the driver stopped to investigate. Another car tried to pass, forcing a third car into the ditch.

The Boy Scouts of New Lenox attended the Iowa-Illinois foot ball game at Champaign Saturday afternoon. They were accompanied by John Francis, Jr., Scout Master E. E. Guillekson, patrol leader Herbert Swanson and Earl Strausberg.

The Cotton Blossom Singers from Mississippi gave a concert in the M. E. church. The program consisted of spirituals, and plantation melodies. It was well attended. The proceeds will go for church purposes.

An eight pound baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Pacat at the Chicago Lying-in hospital Monday morning. Mother and baby are doing fine.

The Best We Can Do

A STATE INCOME TAX?

The general ballot this fall will include a proposed amendment to the state constitution, which would make possible a state income tax. As a matter of abstract justice, it is not fair that the owner of real estate should bear the full burden of taxation while the stock and bond holder escapes tax free. Our constitution was adopted when practically all wealth consisted of real estate holdings. It should be brought up to date.

The amendment will be opposed by the city of Chicago, for reappointment has been delayed time after time, and the city is denied its proper representation at Springfield. Naturally it will be opposed by the big newspapers, as they are themselves large corporations.

Downstate, on the other hand, probably objects to the quality of representative chosen by Chicago. That, however, is none of the business of downstate.

So, if a prediction may be ventured, the amendment will be defeated. When downstate gives Chicago a square deal on representation, it can look for a square deal on taxation.

We have a hazy recollection that there was once a war waged over "taxation without representation."

The general ballot bearing the names of candidates for offices also will carry the proposed amendment to the revenue section of the constitution.

"This clipping indicates the tactics of 'Downstaters' the farmer and his Allies (joined against Chicago) with 4000000 people Cook County has only 9 State Senators at Springfield while the rest of the State with 3700000 people has 32 State Senators and if a State Income Tax Law were passed it leaves the 'gates open' for the balance of the State to vote on Chicago such tax as they will.

When some years ago it was proposed the amendment specifically stated state rate to 5 percent income. This amendment has no 'limit'. Now the present tax system gives about 7 percent taxes to the State, balance is spent locally.

It was the intent of those who 'buried' the amendment in the general ballot that it would be overlooked in Chicago that 'Downstate' voters being thoroughly 'coached' would vote yes and that it would 'thru' oversight.

In general where State Income in addition to U. S. income Tax evied the result has been factored have left the State to get away in double taxation.

It is not a time to sleep on this every voter should acquaint himself with its possible results to him in every angle. If this is done it will be 'buried' once and for all the question will not rise again.

ORLAND YOUTH TAKES OWN LIFE WHILE INSANE

Neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Smith of Orland township were saddened and shocked by the death, by suicide, of their son John Tuesday morning Sept. 30.

The young man, who was 24 years old, had been a lad of great promise until he fell on the ice when a child of ten years. Two years later it was found that he had a tumor on the brain, and an operation was performed to correct the condition.

He was never in good health again, in spite of the constant medical attention of the best physicians. He had difficulties in the use of his right leg and hand, and was frequently in poor mental condition.

Between attacks, the young man was in reasonable mental condition and in recent months had seemed to brood over his state. About a month ago he made threats that caused his parents to take measures to protect him from doing harm to himself, but this spell had passed.

On Monday morning John started to drive the cows to pasture, and his father, mother, and sister left for Chicago. Returning, they found that the dog, always a companion of their son, was at home, but the boy was not to be found. Search was started, but with no avail. The following morning neighbors were called upon for aid and the fields were searched, in the thought that perhaps he had fallen and hurt himself.

Finally the search turned to the barn and there the body was found by a life-long friend, Orville Mitchell who lives on an adjoining farm. The lad had returned to his idea of a month past and severed a blood vessel in his neck and was dead when found.

The coroner's office was notified and, after permission was given by a deputy sheriff sent to the scene, the body was removed to the Gerharz undertaking parlors in Lemont. On Wednesday morning an inquest was convened, in charge of Deputy Coroner V. L. Kasperski. Jurors were all from Orland, neighbors of the family.

Joseph Creer acted as foreman, and other members were John Bush, Orville Mitchell, Ernest Jordan, William Heatherwick, and Edgar Mitchell.

Martin Smith, father of the youth, testified as to the family history and condition of his son, and testimony as to his mental and physical state was added by others. The jury found a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane, due to ill health.

The deceased is survived by his parents and by five brothers and four sisters, who are: Mrs. Margaret Williams of Troy Center, Wisconsin; Edward of Joliet; Peter of Homer; Martin Jr. of Mokena; Mrs. Elizabeth Kopp of Chicago; Walter of Orland; Mrs. Anna Tasch of Maywood; Alex and Marie Smith of Orland.

The funeral was held on Friday morning Oct. 3rd., at 10:00 o'clock, in the Orland Park Catholic church. Burial was in Homer cemetery.

To Honor Memory of Baron von Steuben

Governors of states from coast to coast, leaders in the world of aviation enthusiasts for international good will, and national and local officials will attend the Bi-Centennial Banquet to be held at the Steuben Club Oct. 22, in honor of Baron VonSteuben, Revolutionary hero and friend of George Washington.

The Banquet will serve a double purpose, commemorating the birthday of the man who gave of his fortune and service to the cause of American liberty, and as an official hopoff on a good will tour of the country under the auspices of the German Government, by Fraulein Antonie Strassmann, Berlin aviatrix.

Fraulein Strassmann has made the Steuben Club her headquarters since the recent air races and will be the special guest of honor at the Bi-Centennial. During her stay, she is meeting personages and organizations with mutual interests—aviation, sport, society and the stage. The young actress-aviatrix learned to fly while a member of the Stadt Theater of Berlin, stealing out to the airport after performances of "Midsummer Night's Dream." She was only the second German woman to receive her pilot's license.

On her tour of the country, Fraulein Strassmann will be the guest of the large cities, Chamber of Commerce.

Meanwhile, in the world of sport, she is having opportunity to add football and baseball to her repertory which already includes boxing, fencing, swimming and tennis.

"We beat them 14 to 7, Dad! In the last quarter Dick Brady ran sixty-seven yards for the winning score... you should have seen him travel!"

Dad telephones his boy at school and "gets the dope" on all the games. Father and son talk over studies, too, and—need it be said—finances! Mother says "hello", too, and these little telephone visits keep her happy while her boy is away in a distant college town.

Sons and daughters away at school can telephone home and have the charges "reversed". Make a habit of "keeping in touch" by telephone all through the school year. Long Distance is Quick... Clear... Inexpensive!

Universal Impulse to Respond to Fire Alarm

The multiplication of unenforceable laws reached its climax in Brookfield, Mo., where the city council passed an ordinance prohibiting citizens from running to fires, says the St. Paul Dispatch. No impulse is more firmly entrenched in the human makeup than that which drives men, women and children to break into a run at the sound, sight or report of fire. Let your sky display even a slightly unnatural glow, and cracker box perforations end in the middle of a sentence, houses are abandoned, decorum ignored and the entire population resembles a football team in a desperate effort to make the last ten yards.

There is nothing like a fire to speed up the human ambulatory department. Combustion is as irresistible as the latest jazz tune. Cats and dogs and all that crawl upon the earth are subject to its giddy spell.

Youthful Financier

Her name is Althea, she is six years old and she lives in Collingswoods, Pa. She wandered about her neighborhood the other day and saw a backyard flower enthusiast thinning out his garden, piling scores of excess blooms in a heap. Althea asked what he planned to do with them and the answer was "Burn 'em." The child ran home and returned with two baskets. She filled them with flowers and made her way down the street. Two hours later she returned with the baskets empty, looking for more flowers. "What did you do with the flowers?" the gardener asked. "I thold 'em at all the people's houtheth," she said, displaying a handful of cents.

Dog's Long Climb

A small dog belonging to Elden P. Munsey of Wiscasset, Maine, performed an unusual feat recently when he climbed a ladder measuring 23 feet to the top of a barn on which his master was napping on a strip of roofing. Needless to say, the dog was carried down when the task was completed.

Fighting Fire in 1676

Fire engines with hose pipes were used at the great fire in Southwark, England, in May, 1676.

How Old Are You?

When Will You Be 42?

Today You Say—And That Is That—But Tell Me, Are You Very Fat?

Well, if you are—it's probably your own fault—You don't know how to eat right and that's one reason. If you would like to learn how to lose the fat you hate—and no one else likes—do as I did—Take this 30 day test—

Cut out candy, cakes—pies and ice cream—cut down potatoes, rice—butter—cheese, cream and sugar—

Eat anything else, you feel like eating, but moderately—lean meat—fish—chicken—vegetables and fruit are best—

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts—in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—don't miss a morning—follow this advice. One woman lost 19 pounds in 4 weeks—another got rid of 47 pounds in 3 months—a New York woman lost 14 pounds with one bottle of Kruschen and is full of vim and pep, so she writes—

At any drug store in the world you can get these magic salts—one 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks—Ask for Kruschen Salts—an enemy to Fat.

Death came to 417 Illinois citizens through fire during 1929 and the property loss averaged $2,000,000 per month, according to records of State Fire Marshal S. L. Legreid made public in connection with the observance of Fire Prevention week, October 5 to 11. Ninety per cent of all fires are preventable through the exercise of reasonable care on the part of the individual, he said, and gave the following as principal causes of fires in Illinois: Stoves and furnaces, sparks on wooden shingled roofs, defective or overheated chimneys, spontaneous combustion (usually in rubbish or waste material), electrical defects and matches and smoking. Chambers of commerce and civic organizations throughout the state participated in the observance of the week, and city officials were requested to make a careful survey of fire hazards in their communities. Talks and fire drills featured the observance in schools. Governor Emmerson in a proclamation declared that to prevent fire is the personal responsibility of everyone.

An expenditure of $535,783.94 for paving is provided for in six additional contracts awarded by the state department of public works and buildings, also $58,167.74 for grading and $50,719.04 for bridge construction. The six projects are: Route 53, Cook county, 7.64 miles of 20-foot pavement between Wolf road and Oak Forest, Chicago Heights Coal Co., Chicago Heights, $196,326.10. Route 128, Fayette-Effingham counties, 6.97 miles of grading from Route 11 northward, Globe Construction Co., Evansville, Ind., $58,167.74. Route 21, Lake county, a bridge over the Soo Line railroad at Lake Villa, L. B. Fugitt Construction Co., Chicago, $38,322.04. In Hamilton county, on Route 142, 10.96 miles of paving between McLeansboro and Dahlgren, 7.20 miles between McLeansboro and Dale, J. R. Feigel Co., Evansville, Ind., $279,472.19. Route 104, Sangamon county, two bridges west of Auburn, M. C. Robinson, Girard, $12,397.00. Route 129, Shelby county, 3.46 miles of paving, from a point east of Stewardson southward, Orville Arnold, Casey, $59,985.65.

A delegation of about a hundred highway engineers from the United States, Europe, South America and Asia, will make a tour of Illinois the latter part of October, being expected in Springfield on October 23. This tour follows sessions in Washington and is being arranged by Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer of Illinois, and the Chamber of Commerce.

Representatives from all parts of the state of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce will meet at Chicago, October 9 and 10. Business conditions throughout the state and nation will be the main topic of discussion. Terms of office of three directors from each of six districts of the state expire and new ones will be chosen.

Only pole and line fishing will be permitted in the Kaskaskia river and its tributaries hereafter, these having been designated as a fish preserve in a proclamation issued by Director Ralph F. Bradford, of the department of conservation. Game wardens are warning net fishermen in that section of this ruling. Reasons given for this action are: The stream is too small to permit commercial fishermen to operate on an extensive scale as at present. This season thousands of pounds of fish have been taken from the river by persons who are only temporary residents of the state, and sold in other states. There is no way to confine the use of traps and nets to a reasonable amount of use. Use of the traps and nets is destroying the sports of pole and line fishermen in the Kaskaskia river.

Another definite obstacle in the way of removal of the radio station WTAN from Streator to Springfield has arisen, a temporary injunction having been issued by Judge Edgar Eldredge of the Circuit court at Ottawa under which it is claimed the station must be kept at Streator for at least 18 months. This was issued in response to petition from the Licht Melody company, operating WTAN now under a lease which they claim holds good until March, 1932. The Williams Hardware company, owners of the station, can ask the court to lift the injunction but the Melody company claims the existence of their contract will prevent it. Contracts with 122 Streator merchants for broadcasting and the building up of the station to a going concern are the reasons given by the Melody company for objection to the removal.

An organization with a big name, the State Association of Supervisors, County Commissioners, County and Probate Clerks, County Auditors and County Treasurers of Illinois, held its forty-fourth annual state convention in Springfield, September 30 and October 1. State matters that concern county officials were the subjects of most of the addresses.

October 20-23 are the dates of the annual convention at Springfield of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and Rebekah State assembly.

Officers chosen for the coming year by the Illinois Grand council, Royal and Select Masons, at their assembly in Danville, are: S. C. Harbour, Chicago, grand master; Charles W. Keye, Peoria, deputy grand master; George W. Warvell, Chicago, grand recorder; David W. Isenhour, grand steward; Otho L. Caldwell, Springfield, grand treasurer; Fred W. Kruger, Belleville, grand principal conductor of work; H. S. Bartruff, Chicago, grand captain of the guard; Richard Howells, Streator, grand conductor; Wilson E. Donaldson, Chicago, grand chaplain; B. F. Secord, Chicago, grand marshal; Addison Hickox, Chicago, grand sentinel. Mattoon gets the 1931 assembly.

Cancer, diphtheria, and dietary reform for expectant mothers and infants are three specified subjects scheduled for discussion at a conference of municipal health officers of Illinois called by Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, for October 16 and 17 in Springfield. The economics of health work will be discussed by an Indiana physician who will cite the findings of a recent county-wide survey in his state to show where the money spent for all kinds of health and medical service goes under present conditions. Trends in public health service will be presented by an officer in the United States health service.

The ninth all-state conference of Vocational Home-making Teachers and the tenth annual meeting of the Illinois Home Economics association will be held October 23 to 25 in East St. Louis, according to announcement made by Miss Adah Hess, state supervisor of home economics education. An attendance of about 400 persons is expected.

Every school in Illinois has been urged by Superintendent of Public Instruction Francis G. Blair to plant a tree in honor of the bicentennial of George Washington. Praise for this spirit of co-operation with the American Tree association has been expressed by the president of the association which is directing the tree planting phase of the nationwide anniversary celebration in 1932.

One Illinoisan, John Livingston, of Aurora, captured a cash prize in the Ford air tour, landing second and winning $2,000. The caravan started from Detroit, September 11, flew to 27 cities in the United States and Canada and returned to Detroit in 16 days without mishap to contestants or planes.

The Illinois Library association holds its annual convention, October 15 to 17, at the LeClair hotel, Moline. Iowans also expect to attend. The president this year is Michael F. Gallagher, of the Chicago law firm of Gallagher, Kohlsaat, Rinaker, and Wilkinson.

Public health nurses in Illinois now number 648, a gain of 149 within the last ten years. Dr. Andy Hall, state health director, who gave out this statement, says there is a noticeable difference in health statistics between the sections of the state where many such nurses are hired and where they are few in number. "The influence of nursing services is reflected better in the infant mortality rate than elsewhere," he states. In the northern third of the state where there are nine public health nurses per 100,000 population, the infant death rate last year was 58 compared with 75 in the southern third where only six nurses are employed per 100,000 population. In the central third, the ratio is eight and the infant death rate was 62.

A great increase in fire losses comes every fall with the approach of cold weather, according to a statement made by State Fire Marshal S. L. Legreid. He gives heating plant hazards as the principal cause, declaring that the average citizen allows his fire to go out in the spring and forgets about the heating plant until it is time to fire up again. "Now is the time to give the furnace and heating equipment a thorough inspection," he says, and adds: "Defective flues also are responsible for much of our winter fire loss. They should be gone over carefully and pointed up and repaired if necessary. The part of the flue which passes through the attic should be given particular attention."

Jewelry and ornaments of the people of all nations is exquisitely reproduced in Volkerschmuck, a portfolio of plates which the library extension division, Springfield, has available for circulation to clubs or classes making a study of ornamental designs. Examples of ancient jewelry as well as those of a more modern era are given. Of interest also to students of design is a collection of plates reproducing, in colors, the rugs and tapestries of Poland, Lithuania and Yugoslavia. The library extension division has other similar books and portfolios which may be obtained for study by either clubs or individuals.

Illinois Knights of Pythias in their annual convention at Decatur decided to transfer their state headquarters from Springfield to that city. The building in which they are now located will be sold. Harry E. Beekman of Petersburg, business manager of the state department of registration and education, was elected grand chancellor and all last year's officers were automatically elected to the next higher position. The convention went on record endorsing the old age pension measure to be introduced in the legislature next year.

MARY, THE MOTHER OF JESUS: AN EXAMPLE OF MOTHERHOOD

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:15-19; John 2:1-5; 19:25-27.
GOLDEN TEXT—But Mary kept all these sayings, pondering them in her heart.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Mary, the Mother of Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Mary, the Mother of Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What We Owe Our Mothers.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Mother's Influence.

I. Who Mary Was (Luke 1:26, 27). She was a Jewish maid of Nazareth. The first information we have of her is that she was engaged to be married to Joseph, a carpenter of the same village. The custom among the Jews was for betrothal to take place about a year before marriage. During this interval the woman remained with her parents.

II. Mary Accepted Motherhood at God's Command (Luke 1:26-56).

1. God sent Gabriel to Mary (vv. 26-38).

It was during this interval of betrothal before Joseph and Mary were married that God sent the angel Gabriel to announce to Mary that she was to be the mother of Jesus. More than seven hundred years before, Isaiah prophesied that a virgin should give birth to a son whose name should be called Immanuel—God With Us (Isaiah 7:14). Though at first perplexed, she accepted the announcement with remarkable courage and devotion. Mary accepted motherhood at a tremendous cost. She was conscious of her virgin purity. She knew that to become a mother under such circumstances would expose her to suspicion and shame. This was the view that certain Jews took of the matter, for they cast into the face of Jesus, that he was born of fornication (John 8:41). Her faith was such that she responded with noble courage.

2. Mary visits Elisabeth (Luke 1:39-45).

In her embarrassment she set out on a visit to an elderly kinswoman named "Elisabeth," where she could have the help of a woman of spiritual discernment.

3. Mary's song (vv. 46-56).

Having sought the sympathy and encouragement of her friend, her triumphant faith carried her beyond the misunderstanding and shame which awaited her, and caused her soul to burst out in a wonderful song of praise. As pointed out by another, three features of her character stand out in this song:

(1) Her hearty purity.
Only a pure heart rejoices at the nearness of God.

(2) Her humility.
She forgot herself and gave her heart in praise to God.

(3) Her unselfishness.
She did not primarily think of the undying honor which would be attached to her, but the blessing which would come upon future generations through her.

4. The birth of Christ at Bethlehem (Luke 2:15-19).

What Gabriel announced to Mary was now being fulfilled. Caesar's decree concerning taxation brought Joseph and Mary to Bethlehem for the fulfillment of Micah 5:2. Because of the crowded inn, the birth of the world's Savior took place in a stable.

III. Mary's Faith in Her Son (John 2:1-5).

1. Her anxiety (v. 3).

The arrival of Jesus and his disciples put a drain upon the resources of the host, for their invitation seemingly came after their arrival at Cana.

2. Mary presents the need to Jesus (v. 3).

The clear implication is that she requested him to embrace this opportunity to present his Messianic claims by working a miracle.

3. Jesus asserts his authority (v. 4). He respectfully reminded his mother that he had now passed from her authority and that his Father's will was supreme.

4. Mary's confidence (v. 5).

Perhaps as he asserted his authority he gave her a sign by which she understood that he would not fail her in her hour of embarrassment. Accordingly she directed the servants to carry out whatever instructions he should give.

IV. A Dying Son's Thought for His Mother (John 19:25-27).

It is beautiful to note the tender care which Jesus in his dying hour manifested for his mother. He committed her to the care of John. John accepted the responsibility of a son and took her to his own home.

Capital City's Growth

Not According to Plan

It is true to a large extent that the more desirable avenues in Washington bear the names of northern states and the less desirable bear the names of southern states. When the streets were numbered, lettered, and named in the very beginning of the plans for the city of Washington, no one knew in which direction the Capital would grow. It was expected, in fact, that the city would grow toward the east and south. It actually happened that the city grew more rapidly toward the north and west. Some of the avenues which now run through somewhat undesirable sections of the city are so located that as the plans for the city's improvement are executed they will be perhaps the most beautiful of Washington's streets. An example of this is Virginia avenue, which at no very distant time will probably be one of the most beautiful streets. It is doubtless true that the streets around the Capitol were named first and the states for which they were named were those belonging to the Union at that time.—Washington Star.
